I can't wait for more Ghost Cat Mysteries!

By M. Lapierre

When I first saw this ebook pop up on Amazon on Friday, I immediately downloaded it and put my scheduled reading on hold. I devoured it this weekend and already can't wait for Book 2 so I can spend more time with Christy, Shadow, and especially sweet little Midnight.

Christy works at a secondhand shop, Memories and Dreams, and is devastated by the recent murder of her boss and beloved cat Midnight. She's in such a state of grief that at first she thinks she's going crazy when Midnight's ghost appears to her, but she soon realizes he's come back to lead her to his killer. I picked up on a clue early on that led me to figure out the murderer, but that in no way took away from my enjoyment of the story. This short mystery contains a wonderful secondary cast including Christy's BFF, a promising love interest, and a town full of interesting characters with secrets of their own.

It looks like Midnight has returned to his beloved mistress and plans to stick around for awhile; I know I can't wait to see what further adventures they will have together.

very readable

By RDC

the book is a fun entry into the cozy genre. i think you probably really need to be a cat person to get it, though. my own cat died recently so i probably related better than most, but that aside the mystery was okay and other than being a little judgemental the heroine likeable. the secondary characters were the best thing in the book. i hope Ms. Beck writes more in the series.
